This study aims to examine the influence of good governance and work discipline on the performance of local government at the Sub-District Office of Lubuk Raja, Ogan Komering Ulu Regency. The research employed a quantitative method using a survey approach. Primary data were collected through questionnaires distributed to all employees at the sub-district office using the total sampling technique. The data were analyzed using multiple linear regression to assess the effect of each independent variable on the dependent variable. The results indicate that good governance has a significant influence on local government performance. Furthermore, work discipline also has a positive and significant influence on local government performance. Simultaneously, good governance (X1) and work discipline (X2) have a significant effect on the performance of local government (Y) at the Sub-District Office of Lubuk Raja. This research is expected to serve as a reference for local governments in improving organizational performance through the implementation of good governance principles and enhancement of employee discipline.
